

Custer's Last Stand

Michael T. Griffith

Major Reno and Captain Benteen waited for over an hour on Reno Hill while Custer's men were fighting for their lives just a few miles away. When Captain Thomas Weir finally shamed Reno and Benteen into moving toward Custer, Custer's force had been fighting the Indians for over an hour. If Reno and Benteen had moved earlier, they may have been able to save most of Custer's force, and the Battle of the Little Big Horn may have ended differently.
